'Streak-in' draws more than 2,500 to central campus

SIU's central campus was covered by a roaring crowd of more than 2,500 students and other flesh followers who turned out Thursday afternoon to witness a two-hour streak-in.

The exhibition started slow, but gained momentum as more than 35 spontaneous streakers strove to outdo each other with skinny-dipping, gymnastic routines, and car runs through the crowd.

The crowd was drawn to the site by signs posted across campus, and began gathering some two hours before the scheduled 2 p.m. starting time. Some perched in trees, and in Morris Library to get an unobstructed view.

"I want to see the streakers," said David Stern, 20, a junior in finance. "I'm cutting an important class for this."

The crowd milled around, not knowing where to look when the first streakers appeared in the distance, dancing on top of the Faner Building. With the ice broken, the happening was on.

A male streaker sliced right through the heart of the throng in front of Morris as a wild cheer went up. He made it to the Life Science Building, turned around and bowed, they pivoted and took off for Thompson Woods. Thirty seconds later another male followed him on the same course.

People were looking in the direction of the last streaker when another in a devil's mask and minus the strategic half of his wardrobe romped and jumped northward toward the Morris parking lot.

Meanwhile nine male streakers sprinted through Morris Library's first floor, throwing the circulation desk into an uproar. The book checker at the south door, Mary Lawrence, was more controlled. "I think it's marvelous," she said, and quoted a Johnny Carson quip: "It's one way to tell who's a big man on campus."

The first streaks were planned. Interviewed by the Daily Egyptian, the Faner dancers, identified as Mr. and Mrs. Claude Aberdine, said they did it on a dare. Mr. Aberdine said they "snuck up" on an elevator to the fourth floor and got on the roof.

"We danced to get attention," he said. "We didn't stay long because we were afraid of getting arrested."

The Morris streakers also made their plans Wednesday night. But the premeditated flings set off a rash of spontaneous frolics from all directions as spectators became participants.

Six male and two females stripped and dived into the pond in front of Morris, splashing the crowd that quickly formed around them. The noisy din accelerated as the dippers were joined by two more males and a couple of barking dogs.

The episode ended as quickly as it began, the dippers streaking off northward, leaving the dogs wondering where their playmates went. A few spontaneous dippers walked nonchalantly back through the crowd to retrieve the clothes they left at the pond's edge.

CSEC resolution supports Derge

By Leah Yates
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Civil Service Employees Council (CSEC) voted unanimously Thursday to give SIU President David R. Derge and his administration a vote of confidence.

"The CSEC gives a vote of confidence to Dr. Derge and we appreciate the efforts he has made at this institution although we do not agree with every action he has taken since he has been here," the statement said.

The statement was presented to the CSEC in motion form by member Don Gladden. He made the motion after Lee Hester, president, asked the council to make a statement either to support or reject the present administrative structure.

Derge said he was delighted with the response from the council late Thursday afternoon.

"I'm very proud of the good working relationship I've had with the council since I've been here. I feel we have had a warm working relationship," Derge said.

The University can't work without civil service employees who have always had the welfare of SIU at heart, he added.

This is the first group to issue a statement supporting Derge since he was censured by the Faculty and Student Senate earlier this quarter.

The Faculty Senate action had censured the Derge administration for "lack of effective leadership" in coping with SIU's $2.7 million budget cut in December.

The Student Senate passed a resolution on Feb. 13 censuring Derge and calling "upon the Board of Trustees to appoint new leadership capable of inspiring confidence."

The Board is still evaluating the "broad, general charges" made in the faculty senate's censure resolution and have made no formal response to the resolution.

The CSEC also voted unanimously to change its constitution to allow anyone who has worked at the University for more than six months to vote in council elections, if he is in a civil service position at the time of the election.

Before the amendment was approved, the constitution limited voting to those who had been civil service employees for more than six months.

John Robinson, council member, said notices of the election had been mailed to all civil service employees. Petitions to run for council posts also have been mailed and must be returned by March 22, he said.

Ballots will be mailed on April 10 to civil service personnel employed under a Carbondale campus account.

The ballots must be received by the election committee by noon April 17.

The CSEC will hold a special meeting at 1 p.m. Tuesday to hear Hester, council president, report on a meeting planned for 8:30 p.m. Friday between Ivan Elliott Jr., Board of Trustees president, and the seven SIU-C constituency heads.

Conflicting rules may halt S-Senate election in April

By Debby Raternann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Election Commissioner Ralph Rosnyk said Thursday he "will stop the election" scheduled for April 17 and 18 unless the Student Senate clears up several conflicts between the Student Government constitution and by-laws.

In response, Student Body Vice President Jim Kania has called an emergency meeting of the senate at 3 p.m. Friday in the Student Center

Thebes Room. "I hope the senate realizes its obligation to the student body and will be there," Kania said. "They have two options open. They can rescind the amendments to the by-laws they passed Wednesday, which were in direct contradiction to the constitution, or they can pass a constitutional amendment which will agree with the by-laws."

Decision on Co-Rec disappoints Yeargin

By Gary Houy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Sharon Yeargin, executive secretary of the Graduate Student Council (GSC) said Thursday she is "disappointed" with Wednesday's decision by the Recreation Building Committee to go ahead with plans for the $8.9 million co-recreation building.

Architects' plans for the building will be presented to the Board of Trustees Thursday. If the plans are approved, the University will begin accepting bids at "the most opportune time," said Rino Bianchi, director of facilities planning. "I'm disappointed that the committee would not wait at least a month to hold a referendum," Ms. Yeargin said. "A month's wait isn't that expensive, when you're talking about an $8.9 million building."

Ms. Yeargin said she understood the University would not be accepting bids on construction of the building for three to six months.

The referendum was requested by Ms. Yeargin to "determine the needs of the University." The GSC and the Student Senate recently passed resolutions calling on President David R. Derge to halt further action on the building and form a joint committee to review its need.

"The councils voted for the suspension of the construction of the building," Ms. Yeargin said. "I can't withdraw that resolution."

She said the GSC and the Student Senate might present a protest at the board meeting.

"I'm also disappointed with the action by President Derge," she said. "He asked for recommendations from the Recreation Building Committee. They've already had a vested interest in the building for the past years."

A committee of alumni, graduate students and undergraduate students should examine the need for the building, she said.

"A lot of other questions haven't been answered yet," Ms. Yeargin said. "Like, how much the building will cost to run?"

Emil Spees, dean of student life, said Wednesday it would cost an estimated $700,000 a year to operate the facility. This would amount to approximately $14 per student each semester, he said.

A survey whose results were published in Wednesday's Daily Egyptian showed the Student Welfare and Recreation Fund (SWARF), which would pay for the recreation facility, was lowest on a list of student fee priorities. A "medical benefit" fee was listed as the highest priority.

"Take a look at the medical benefit results," Ms. Yeargin said. "The SWARF fund was the lowest priority. This might show a change in needs of students."

Ms. Yeargin said students have been paying money into SWARF each quarter and "haven't seen any results. In a time of financial crisis like this, it might be wise to see if that $8.9 million could be used for something else."

Dean Isbell, assistant treasurer and member of the recreation committee, said the trustees would have to pass a new resolution if the building funds were to be used for anything but the construction of the facility and its operating costs.

"The dollars collected up to $8.9 million were pledged to recreation or welfare in the 1964 referendum and it couldn't be used for anything other than the building of that type of facility," Isbell said Thursday.

"A resolution made about a year ago by the Board of Trustees permitted the money collected in the SWARF fund over the $8.9 million could be used for construction or operating costs of the facility," he said.

Isbell said the $8.9 million amount was reached "several months ago," and $800,000 collected from student fees since then could be used to pay operating costs of the facility.

"There is a possibility that physical education courses could be held in the new facility to bring in state revenue for operation costs," Isbell said. "Student government could grant permission for P.E. classes to use it at certain times of the day."

Isbell said this type of plan is a "very, very reasonable way to cut operation costs. However, it's the students' prerogative to make the decision."

senate Wednesday night which conflict with the constitution include recommendations that all candidates be listed by lottery, that candidates shall not run for more than one office, that no write-in votes will be considered, and that the election commission have original and exclusive jurisdiction in all petition matters.

"With the conflict the way it stands now, there is no way we can run a constitutional election," Rosnyk said. "I'm not going to act illegally, and I'm not going to resign. I'll do my best, but I'm relying on the senate to help."

Kania said the constitution takes precedence over the by-laws. "Unless the controversy is settled, the election will have to be postponed," Kania said.

Rosnyk agreed. "If the Senate refuses to act, the constitution says the student body president can decide. If Mike (Carr) can't solve the dilemma, I'll give the senate 24 hours to act. If they don't, I'll stop the election.

"If that happens, no more petitions will be given out and I'll call the Computer Service and tell them to stop preparing the ballots. Each day the senate delays will mean a week's delay for the election," Rosnyk said.

Kania said Thursday if the election is postponed much later than the original April 17 and 18 date, "it will be an unconstitutional election. The constitution says spring Student Government elections must be held in April."

The constitutional amendment which would clarify the election by making the by-laws agree with the constitution needs 20 votes to pass. It failed Wednesday with 18 "yes" votes, one "no" vote and two abstentions.

In other action Wednesday, the senate approved a bill asking the Board of Trustees to rename the SIU Arena the Gary Morava Memorial Arena. The senate also passed budget requests for Social Work Club, the Debate Team, Cycling Club, Kol Shalom and Interfaith Council. Recognition of the SIU Sport Club also passed.

The senate will not meet next Wednesday because of final exams.

Cars often line both sides of the street in front of Woody Hall despite no parking signs all along the street. Officials are considering lifting the parking ban and installing meters.

Woody Hall parking ban may be lifted by officials

By Rafe Klinger
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

University and Carbondale officials are studying the possible elimination of the no parking restrictions on South University Avenue in front of Woody Hall.

With the bursar's and admissions and records offices located in Woody, people with business inside park their vehicles along the yellow-striped curve on South University despite the no parking warnings. The legal parking area is the small metered lot about one half block north of the entrance to the building.

"We're entrapping people, forcing them to violate the law, and we don't want to do that," said Tom Leffler, chief of the security police.

Leffler said he and Carbondale City Manager Carroll Fry are currently studying the situation in front of Woody.

The no parking regulation on South University, enforced by Carbondale police, stems from a contract of about "4 to 5 years ago" between the University and the City, Leffler explained. In that agreement, the University built the lot north of Woody and the city installed meters. The revenue from the meters is split by the parties. The city also agreed to set up and enforce the no parking regulations on South University south of Mill Street as part of the contract, Leffler said.

About two weeks ago, Leffler said he suggested to Fry that the city install meters along South University and share the revenues with the University.

Fry said he "wouldn't split the revenues since it's the city's street and the city would make the investment of installing the meters." The meters would cost some $8,000, Fry estimated.

Leffler said another possibility would be for the University to purchase all the property on the block and take over supervision of the street.

Leffler said he has asked one of the Board of Trustees legal advisors to study the original contract since it would have to be "renegotiated" for any changes to be made.

Fry said the city is interested in changing the regulation "to legalize what people are doing" and to relieve city police of duty a meter checker could handle if meters were installed.

However, any change would require action by the City Council and the Board of Trustees, Fry said.

"At this point, we are conducting an administrative discussion with University officials," he said. "We are only at the talking stage."

Tom McNamara, administrative assistant to Carbondale Police Chief Joe Dakin, said city police are enforcing the no parking regulations in front of Woody. However, he indicated that the police would be relieved of an unwanted duty if the regulations were changed and meters installed.

"Enforcement on University Avenue is difficult," he said. "We could probably keep an officer there writing tickets all day, but we have calls for service, emergencies and other functions which require a majority of our men hours."

"It would be cheaper and more efficient to allow meter checkers to enforce the parking regulations and relieve police to other duties."

thicker, streakers began competing for attention, streaking at cross-ways through the crowd. Two male streakers shot through toward Morris, one of them screaming and cupping his hands into a makeshift supporter. At that instant, three other streakers took to transportation, biking through on 10-speeds.

What started out as a risqué move started getting commonplace after while, as lone male streakers drew only a few cheers.

But the exhibition was revived by a shift to gimmickry, as streakers started using their imagination. Five streakers roared up the sidewalk from Morris to Wham in a bright green Renault, three of them hitching on the rear trunk.

A few of the car-borne males looked like repeats, as identifying clothing, little as there was, linked them with earlier treks.

After a lull, students began dispersing, but the streak-in surged on. A lone girl skirted the east edge of central campus, drawing a crowd of males, disappointed at the low female streaker turnout.

She headed straight for a waiting car in the parking lot in front of Morris and exited to a chorus of "Right on" from her followers.

Another man-woman team streaked screaming into the pond, then hit the shore and sprinted to the same parking lot. The girl had difficulty getting her jeans back on, perhaps a bit nervous as the spectators gathered around.

The action shifted to center stage where a long-haired male dashed down from the central campus knoll and broke into a gymnastic routine, a cartwheel to a pair of handsprings and a roundoff.

The Daily Egyptian came across two freshmen students who said they organized the streak-in. Mike Grether, journalism major, and roommate Richard Hackett, majoring in biology, said they placed phone calls to the media and posted the signs Wednesday night.

The two freshmen said they didn't plan any of the streaks and didn't know if anyone would, but thought it was a way of "getting people together—just to enjoy the day."

They theorized instead of the streakers stimulating the formation of the crowd, the existence of the crowd which they assembled stimulated people to streak. "People need to loosen up for exams," said Grether.

"It's good and wholesome and a real slap in the face to people who get uptight about indecent exposure," Hackett added. "There's no apathy on campus about this."

One streaker, who insisted the Daily

Egyptian use his name, said he had been thinking about streaking for two days, but never expected to streak before so many people. Frank Shock, a sophomore recreation major, said, "It's great, I love it." Asked what finally made up his mind, he said "It was a dare, something I had to do."

Tom Leffler, chief of the SIU Security Office, was at the scene more than two hours. "We don't plan to make any arrests," he smiled. "I don't think I could make an arrest." "Nothing is out of hand," Leffler said. "Everyone's having a good time."

He said the nudity did not bother him. "It's better than throwing rocks and bombs. Look at them," he said, pointing to the throng. "Everybody has got a smile on their face. I remember when they had tough looks on their faces."

Leffler had police stationed in Lawson Hall and the Life Science buildings after the streak through Morris Library. "We didn't want them in the buildings," he said, "that upsets some people."

SIU President David R. Derge, contacted by phone, said, "I hear there has been quite an uproar on campus this afternoon." When told about the crowd size and all those involved, all he could do was laugh out loud and say "My goodness."

He also said he understood the University of Missouri now holds the streaking record and that he's "very anxious to read tomorrow's DE to see who's taken over the lead."

Only one arrest for streaking at SIU has been reported. Ciel L. Chaloupka, 20, of Colonial East Apartments No. 4A, streaked around Neely Hall Wednesday night and jumped into a waiting car manned by her husband, Harvey.

But SIU Security police, who had been tipped off, were waiting and charged her with disorderly conduct. Leffler said she was charged because "there was almost a mob scene at Neely."

An SIU official said charges may be dropped and her case directed to SIU's discipline office.

Canut-Amoros hearings adjourn

By Terry Martin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Illinois Fair Employment Commission (FEPC) hearings involving Marisa Canut-Amoros' charges of sex discrimination against SIU adjourned after 46 days of testimony Thursday.

Ms. Canut-Amoros, former professor in the School of Engineering and Technology, testified for almost three hours Thursday afternoon in the Regatta Room of the Carbondale Holiday Inn. Her testimony centered primarily around summations of salary figures, summer employment, sabbatical leave and her alleged resignation.

More than 370 documents have been entered as evidence in the case and it may take six months before the hearings can be fully transcribed, the court reporter said.

John Huffman, SIU legal counsel; Sylvia Roberts, Ms. Canut-Amoros' attorney; and FEPC Hearing Examiner William Regas all said after Thursday's session they did not know when the final decision would be reached.

Ms. Canut-Amoros first filed charges of sex discrimination against the University to the former Affirmative Action office in 1971. Her complaint stated there were obvious discrepancies in her salary, summer teaching assignments and sabbatical leave policies as compared with men in the School of Engineering and Technology.

Ms. Canut-Amoros said Thursday her alleged resignation was made by way of letter on May 15, 1971 to Thomas Jefferson, dean of that school, and only in regards to that school.

The Board of Trustees accepted her alleged resignation in July, 1971. She later said she only intended the letter to be a request for transfer.

"I had been told by Dr. (Willis) Malone, (special assistant to SIU President David R. Derge), that my tenured status was in the University and since the problems I had with Mr. Jefferson could not be solved, it was the chancellor's office's duty to look for a place where I could serve," Ms. Canut-Amoros said.

Regas then asked Ms. Canut-Amoros what triggered the alleged resignation. "I was at a dead end in the School of Engineering and Technology," she said. "I had made many attempts to try to teach courses and be useful to the University by introducing new courses. I was very distressed by the fact that when I went to Affirmative Action, I finally found that my teaching competence was in question."

Ms. Canut-Amoros filed similar sex discrimination charges in early 1972 with the Department of Health Education and Welfare (HEW). In May of 1972, she filed the charges with FEPC.

The Chicago HEW regional office ruled there was evidence of sex discrimination in March, 1972 and ordered reinstatement of Ms. Canut-Amoros with full back pay. SIU appealed the HEW ruling to the Washington, D.C. office refusing settlement. HEW dropped the case in August, 1972.

Early in the course of the FEPC hearings, Ms. Canut-Amoros turned down a settlement offer from SIU consisting of $50,000 in back pay, a tenured faculty position at a monthly salary of $2,080, retroactive payment by SIU on her behalf into the state retirement fund covering the period of September 1971 to September 1973 and immediate six-month sabbatical leave at full pay.

Ms. Canut-Amoros was told several times Thursday by Regas to limit her lengthy answers to the specific question asked and to listen closely to those questions.

Both Ms. Roberts and Huffman then cross-examined Ms. Canut-Amoros to sum up their cases. Huffman pointed out and Ms. Canut-Amoros agreed that Jefferson had recommended her to full professorship, and she had received the highest salary increase of any full professor in addition to the largest percentage increase in her first year of professorship.

Some other witnesses called on behalf of both sides during the course of the hearings were: Jefferson; Charles Bernadoni, director of SIU's general accounting; Malone; Robert Layer, chairman of the Department of Economics and former interim president of SIU; Derge; C. Addison Hochman, Vandever professor of economics and former dean of the SIU Graduate School; Marvin E. Johnson, assistant dean of Engineering and Technology; and Warren Buffum, director of the budget at SIU.

Save energy-- start a war

The energy crisis was caused by the Vietnam cease fire.

When it comes down to the reasons for a shortage — any shortage — it usually can be established that the most innocent, disconnected, irrelevant factor is the actual fly in the ointment.

The beef shortage, for instance, was caused by the shortage of Peruvian anchovies. The currents changed off the coast of Peru and the scaly sneathieves beat a path for other waters. Most American cattle are, or rather, were fed on protein meal, which is largely ground up... you guessed it. Because the farmers couldn't get as much protein meal, they had to switch to soybeans. Soybeans are more expensive, the price of production increased, but the farmers couldn't pass it along, i.e. less production — voila — beef shortage.

Which leads back to the meaty question of the energy crisis.

The Shah of Iran on an NBC news special admitted that even Iran's supply of oil will last for only another 30 years at best. Therefore, he said, people should stop wasting it for heating and power generation and start conserving it for important matters, like, he suggested, tanks.

There was always plenty of oil when the U.S. was in Vietnam. Without those hungry tanks to create demand the glutted market gradually decreased production and oil was used for useless purposes such as heating and power generation.

The American people therefore should demand their right to an undeclared war on a developing nation. The campaign motto could be: WAR IS POWER!

Hooray for defiance

To the Daily Egyptian:

This letter is for bicycle owners who have not bothered to register their two-wheelers with area police authorities. In other words, to those who have neglected their duty to adjust to standards thrust upon them by threatening forces.

Congratulations for perceiving the deceptive threats of failure to conform!

As all bicycle possessors will note, recent warnings by the police include impoundment threats for unregistered bikes and ticketing for failure to park in designated areas.

In Saturday's D.E. it was reported the police now say they "are not equipped to impound all bikes without license plates," and they admit further, the University does not have sufficient bicycle racks or lots.

Consequently, only those foolish bikers who chain their machine in front of doorways, fire-hydrants or other emergency areas, or those who can't prove ownership if caught, face the threat of impoundment.

Also the police now say they will not ticket bikes parked outside the designated areas; until the University provides the required spaces.

Perhaps some of the money obtained from those of us who have registered will go to the creation of bicycle parking areas? Perhaps not.

Perhaps some extra University liquor money could go towards the development of more bicycle paths? Perhaps not.

Perhaps some revenue from those who get caught for failure to register and subsequently zapped with a $5.00 ticket, should go to the erection of signs directing bicycle and pedestrian traffic? Perhaps not.

One point remains: You're not required to prove ownership when you register a bike. So if you have a hot one, register it and you superficially own it.

Of course, if there's a chance local police authorities have the serial number of your machine, don't bring it down to the registration location. Or, if you enjoy being a risk-seeker, and naturally defy stupid rules, continue to ride your bike without the silly blue plates. And more power to you.

Soviet logic explained

To the Daily Egyptian:

The disagreement regarding the Russian writer Alexander Solzhenitzyn reveals a serious misunderstanding of the Soviet Union. This naturally results in an injustice.

One must remember that in the Soviet system, the State (the people) owns Solzhenitzyn. His job is not to write the Truth as he selfishly sees it but to do as he's told. When the Communists demand "public ownership of the means of production," they are obviously not kidding.

In the context of their system, there exists a moral obligation to repress an erring writer. When not advancing the common good, he is necessarily damaging it. As a writer he consumes public resources; this consumption must be justified. Of course he cannot justify it to the entire Soviet population. He must justify it to some official keeper of the common good. Public resources cannot reasonably be allocated to the detriment of what the keepers decide is the common good. Imagine Solzhenitzyn asking some commissar for permission to denounce the State (by definition the people) for being unjust and inhuman. Why, they would call him crazy and take him away.

It is particularly important for the State that writers do as they're told. They cannot write the Truth, for tomorrow the State may change the Truth. How would it look—the State owned authors disagreeing with the official Truth?

During World War II, the Truth permitted the Soviet Union and National Socialist Germany to collaborate joyously in their partition of Poland. In those days the official Truth about Fascism was—get this—"Fascism is a matter of taste."

The French Communists were actively undermining the French government while it tried to fight the German National Socialists. And back in America the Communists (perennial pacifists) campaigned against American entry into the fight against the Nazis.

Impossible dream

To the Daily Egyptian:

Hi. I'm a federal prisoner with an unusual request. I'll see the Parole Board in March. This I ask of each student. Say a brief prayer for me and let me know with a short note. No signature necessary.

It is my intention to ask the Parole Board for a parole with no restrictions. That is an almost impossible dream. But I want to devote myself to urging the American public to support my ideas for the reduction of crime in America. I need a no restrictions parole.

Please help me. In Christian Love.

John J. Desmond Jr.
Box 1090
Steilacoom, Washington 98388

Then, suddenly, the Truth changed. Hitler double-crossed good old Uncle Joe, and the Nazis advanced into Russia. So Fascism became a very naughty thing.

Ideology demands that Solzhenitzyn be denounced, precisely because his works are praised by critics of that ideology. Ideology commands that a work be judged for its utilitarian merit. That which promotes the common good and the ideology (class struggle, revolution etc.) is "true", that which retards it must be false. Content, the truth or falsity of Solzhenitzyn's statements hold no merit in this evaluation. And the Soviet government and good Communists everywhere are slavishly consistent when they criticize dissenting writers.

As long as the West preserves some remnants of private ownership (capitalism), its writers will have that much freedom to tell the Truth. It is in Western countries that government officials can logically be denounced for repressing writers.

And unfortunately, it is also in the West, where public ownership or control of communications (television, radio, journalism, education) is growing, that people are finding themselves with an ever diminishing freedom to tell the Truth as they see it.

So he said

To the Daily Egyptian:

I've been a student at SIU since 1965 and a regular reader of the Daily Egyptian. Over the years I have noticed many improvements in the paper but while reading Wednesday's paper, I finally realized something. Several main stories written by David Miller, Randy McCarthy and David Kornblith contained a great deal of "sais." For example, "Leasure said," "Rinella said" and so forth. I understood that the Egyptian is a workshop paper for journalism majors which provides valuable experience but this seems very shabby reporting. For example, David Miller used the word said 22 times in his story. McCarthy used the word 14 times and Kornblith used the word nine times. Frankly, it seems repetitive, dull and most of all an example of poor writing. I wonder how much effort was really put forth in writing these stories? Couldn't the same message be conveyed without the broken record effect of "he said?"

Women's Center to celebrate International Women's Day

International Women's Day will be celebrated from noon to 7 p.m. Saturday at the Women's Center, 404 W. Walnut St.

International Women's Day is observed throughout the United States and other countries in order to "celebrate being a woman." Jan Pueschel, publicity coordinator, said Thursday.

Nine programs and a potluck supper will be included in the activities.

The first program will be from noon to 12:45 p.m. Barb Dahl, student consultant at the Health Service, will speak on "Women's Sexuality."

ATO to canvas for heart fund

Members of the Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity (ATO) will be canvassing the city Friday, Saturday and Sunday, seeking contributions to the Illinois Heart Association.

The fraternity members will solicit contributions in the residential areas of Carbondale, and will accept contributions at the Newman Center.

From March 31 to April 4 the fraternity will hold a Trampoline Marathon, to encourage pledges for the Heart Fund. They plan on bouncing for 96 consecutive hours in the "Jump For Thumps" marathon.

Pledges for jumping hours may be made by signing an affidavit distributed by ATO members, or by phoning the Newman Center. Spectators may view the jumpers at the Newman Center, and if there is enough support for the program, the fraternity plans to make the marathon an annual event.

All proceeds collected from the canvass and the marathon will go to the Illinois Heart Association for continued heart research.

Stock market retraces gains

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock market prices retraced some of their recent gains Thursday as brokers cited profit taking and increased doubt that the Arab oil embargo would end as soon as had been expected.

Several individual issues like International Telephone and Telegraph, Avis, and General Motors were tossed lower on specific news events.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped to 868.48, after good gains Tuesday and Wednesdays. Volume on the New York Stock Exchange was a moderate 14.50 million shares.

Among the 1,793 issues traded on the Big Board, 521 advanced, and 924 declined. The exchange's composite index of all its listed common stock fell .51 to 51.97.

ITT, off 3 1/2, at 24 1/4, led trading on the Big Board, reacting to a decision by the Internal Revenue Service to rescind a 1969 tax ruling concerning the conglomerate's acquisition of Hartford Fire Insurance Co. Tax analysts said the change might cost ITT up to $100 million.

Meanwhile, Avis, Inc., 32 per cent owned by ITT, was suspended on the Big Board just prior to the filing of an SEC suit charging the company with false and misleading statements in a quarter financial report last year. Avis was trading at 16 1/2, down 1 1/4.

Senior recital set for Sunday

Michelle Landes of Carbondale, flutist, and Tom Walls of Effingham, clarinetist, will present a joint senior recital at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel.

Cheryl Nicolandes will accompany both Walls and Miss Landes. Selections by Claude Debussy, Igor Stravinsky, and Alexandro Tchaikovsky will be featured by Walls. Miss Landes will perform selections by Andre Caplet and Bohuslav Martinu.

The recital is open to the public without charge.

Ginny Britton, staff assistant to specialized student services, will speak on "Non-traditional Careers for Women—The Barriers and Breaking them Down" at 12:50 p.m.

The "Feminist Action Coalition" will be the topic of a lecture at 1:45 p.m. by Kathy Jones, secretary of the women's group.

At 2:05 p.m. Genevieve Houghton, 815 N. James, will speak on the "The E.R.A." Carolyn Zimmerman, 214 Glenview Dr., will speak on "The Rape Committee" at 3 p.m. Folk music will be played and discussed at the 3:30 p.m. program. Laura Brown, a student from Plymouth, Minn., will talk on "A Feminist Look at American Folk-music."

At 4 p.m. Phyllis Wagner, 317 S. Oakland, will speak on "Women in the Theater." Judy Little, assistant professor of English, will read "A Legend of Women," and other poetry at 5 p.m.

The programs will be wrapped up at 6 p.m. with rap groups discussing the day's events.

The potluck supper will begin at 7 p.m. Everyone should bring some kind of food. Those with last initials from A to H should bring main dishes; I to N, dessert; and O to Z, vegetables or salad.

Mrs. Pauschei said there will be refrigerator and stove space available for those who come early. She said both men and women are invited to the programs and the potluck supper.

Wholesale prices up again, but not as much

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wholesale prices jumped sharply in February but at a less explosive rate than the previous four months, the government said Thursday.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said wholesale prices leaped by 1.2 per cent last month, far below the 3.1 per cent rise of January but still extremely high by ordinary standards.

The report provided mixed news for consumers. If the smaller rise turns into a trend in later months, it will mean that inflation is finally abating.

But consumers will be noting the higher prices at the retail level in the weeks ahead, primarily in the food and fuels.

The February increase showed wholesale prices 20.3 per cent higher than a year earlier. This is a sharp rise by any standard but it fell short of records.

If wholesale prices went up at the February rate for an entire year, it would mean a hefty 15.4 per cent inflation rate at this level.

About 70 per cent of last month's jump was caused by price increases for fuel, mainly gasoline and residual fuels, metals, farm products and processed foods and feeds.

Herbert Stein, chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, said the smaller rate of increase was welcome but added that no conclusions could be made about one month's statistics.

The bureau's report showed that the wholesale price index rose to 152.7 of the 1967 average. This means that it costs $152.70 to buy the same volume of wholesale goods that $100 bought in 1967.

Wholesale prices of industrial commodities advanced 1.3 per cent, farm products and processed foods and feeds seventenths of 1 per cent, and consumer finished goods 1.2 per cent.

On an unadjusted basis, before any doctoring of the figures through subtracting usual seasonal pricing patterns, wholesale prices over-all rose 1.5 per cent in February, industrial commodities 1.4 per cent, farm products and processed foods and feeds 1.6 per cent.

For consumers, the report means that prices of eggs and beef may soften in the weeks ahead. Egg prices at the farm level dropped 5.6 per cent and livestock prices fell 1.1 per cent.

At the same time, wholesale prices of processed meats, poultry and fish went up 1.1 per cent.

Flat-grant plan earns Illinois $1.7 million

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—A state senator said Thursday the federal government has agreed to give Illinois $1.7 million of the $2 million it withheld in January because the state had too many overpaid and ineligible persons on its welfare rolls.

Sen. Don A. Moore, chairman of the Legislative Advisory Committee on Public Assistance, said the funds were restored because of actions by the Illinois Department of Public Aid in switching to a flat-grant payment system for Aid to Families with Dependent Children and attempting to reduce the level of ineligibility.

Moore said federal officials "were highly complimentary of the state's success with the flat-grant program and of new systems and initiatives aimed at controlling welfare expenditures."

The state receives about $79 million in federal aid every three months from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for its AFDC program.

Moore said he was hopeful no money would be withheld in the next three-month period because of the improved state welfare program.

New firehouse to be one story; no brass poles!

NEW YORK (AP)—The slide down the brass pole in the firehouse isn't easy on firemen, so one city official has won approval of a site for the city's first permanent single-level firehouse.

Donald Manes, president of the borough of Queens, admits, "I know this is counter to children's storybook image depicting firemen hurriedly sliding down the firepoles to their waiting fire trucks."

But Manes said, "This new concept will provide greater safety for firemen."

He said Fire Department statistics for 1972 indicate 1,733 days of work were lost due to 69 injuries to firemen hurrying from upstairs.

State debt limit proposed

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—State Sen. Robert W. McCarthy, D-Decatur, compared Illinois to a "wild-spending child" Thursday and proposed a constitutional amendment to make it more difficult for the state to go into debt.

"Elected officials find it hard to stop spending; yet their political survival means they must vote 'no' on tax increases. This paradox results in taking the easy way out by plunging the government deeper and deeper into debt," he said.

McCarthy said Illinois is now $2.1 billion in debt. The state paid nearly $39 million in interest on its bonds in fiscal 1974 and would pay an estimated $44 million in fiscal 1975, he said.

He said the new Illinois constitution of 1970 changed a provision that permitted state debt of more than $250,000 only if voters approved it at a referendum.

His proposed amendment would require 87½ per cent approval of the General Assembly before additional debt would be allowed. Sixty per cent approval is currently required.

Live-in training 'going well' for Hill House programming

By David Kornblith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
Hill House's live-in "Workshop" for temporary residents is going "very well," said director Paul Reitman Thursday.

So far the House has signed up two SIU students to take part in a week of rehabilitation programs, Reitman said.

The workshop is a new program offered by Hill House. It gives students and anybody else an inside view of Hill House operations.

Persons in fields relating to the work going on at the House, or persons interested in general, are given the opportunity to live at the House for three to five days. The temporary residents participate in the same activities as do the full-time residents.

The first temporary resident to sign up for the program was a senior majoring in radio and television, Reitman said. He has participated in a full week of activity.

On Monday the temporary

Illinois youth faces murder, assault charge

DEER LODGE, Mont. (AP)—The name of a North Dakota woman injured in last October's quadruple slayings at a Montana dude ranch surfaced unexpectedly in Powell County district court Thursday.

The information charging Roger G. Caryl, 18, specifically accused him of two of the four slayings which occurred on the Ovando-area ranch the morning of Oct. 7. But the documents also accused the Illinois youth of first-degree assault in the wounding of Dianna Schnaible of Minot, N.D.

Powell County Sheriff David J. Collings said Mrs. Schnaible suffered a superficial wound from a shotgun blast that killed ranch owner John R. Miller, 24, and Mrs. Judy F. Judd, 61.

Collings said she probably saved herself by falling on the kitchen floor if Miller's Whitetail ranch headquarters as Miller and Mrs. Judd were dying in a nearby room. Collings said the shotgun pellets did not break Mrs. Schnaible's skin.

resident was part of the Synanon game, Reitman said. He described Synanon as confrontation between residents which helps them work out their problems.

Tuesday some of the residents went to the federal prison, Reitman said. Group sessions with inmates were the highlight of the day.

Wednesday and Thursday group sessions within the House were set up, Reitman said. All residents were also given a chance to catch up on some of the work around the house.

On Friday residents will participate in the Hill House marathon, Reitman said. The marathon is 2 day of therapeutic training on various topics relating to House residents.

There will be a fee for temporary residents, Reitman said. Fees start at $10, but will be negotiable depending upon the money the temporary residents have coming in.

For further information or to make reservations call Hill House at 549-7391.

Dissident bishop in Spain

Church-state relations strained

MADRID (AP)—Dissident Bishop Antonio Anoveros was summoned to Vatican talks in Madrid Thursday while the government denied reports it was prepared to terminate its 1953 Church-state concordat over the bishop's actions.

A foreign Ministry spokesman said the unconfirmed reports from Church sources were "false" and "lacked foundation."

The Vatican made no comment on a possible rupture between the Roman Catholic Church and the Spanish government.

The break, if it developed, would leave the government free to try the bishop for what it called "a grave attack on national unity" by urging more freedom for the Basque minority. It would also mark the lowest point in Church-state relations since the end of the civil war in 1939.

The concordat, attacked by both the Church and state as an anachronism in recent years, bars trial or arrest of bishops without permission of the Vatican.

Bishop Anoveros and his vicar, Msgr. Jose Angel Ubieta, brought on the wrath of the government for authorizing distribution of a homily in their Basque diocese Feb. 24 decrying "oppression of peoples" and urging more civil rights for Basques.

The bishop has been under house arrest for a week in the Basque capital of Bilbao.

Smiling and wearing a black beret, the 64-year-old bishop motored from his Bilbao home and went into immediate conference with the Vatican's representative in Spain, Papal Nuncio Msgr. Luigi Dadaglio.

Informed sources reported the new government of Premier Carlos Arias Navarro had informed the Vatican, via Spain's primate, Archbishop Marcelo Gonzalez Martin, that it was ready to terminate the concordat because of the bishop's remarks and his refusal to leave the country.

The sources declined to say what, if any, conditions, the government put in its position.

A termination of the concordat would not officially affect diplomatic relations between the government and the Vatican. But it would mark the first time in three decades that Gen. Franco was without Vatican support. A devout Catholic, Franco has counted heavily on Church support since he won the Civil war and came to power in 1939.

Rail employees return to work as strike ends

JOLIET (AP)—Employees of the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern Railway Co. returned to their jobs Thursday afternoon after a wildcat strike idled 2,700 union members in the morning.

About 575 clerical workers, members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks, refused to report to their jobs and set up picket lines which 2,100 other employees refused to cross.

A railroad spokesman said 400 supervisory personnel kept the trains running on the freight line, which operates in the Chicago area and northwestern Indiana.

The spokesman said the strikers went back to work on orders went back to work on orders from their union, which had not authorized the walkout. They were protesting against the transfer of 13 clerical jobs from South Chicago to Gary, Ind.

DID YOU KNOW

by Moses Robbins

Here's a tennis fact that's hard to believe. Did you know that when a good player serves, the ball travels more than 100 miles per hour? And, recent tests showed that some serves by great players measured up to 160 miles per hour!

Here's a basketball oddity. Only once in the last 20 years has the team that had the scoring leader in the National Basketball Association also won the championship of the NBA. The only time it's happened in the last 20 years was the 1970-71 season when Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, of Milwaukee won the scoring title and Milwaukee won the NBA Championship. You'd think having the scoring champ would help a team win the league title, but it hasn't worked out that way.

Oddly enough, of all the hundreds of men who have been big league baseball managers in history not one has ever had a last name starting with the letter "Y". That seems hard to believe but it's true.

Israeli troops on alert after attack warnings

TEL SHAMS, Occupied Syria (AP)—Reinforced Israeli troops and tanks were on high alert Thursday after warnings of a Syrian attack on this October war battleground, front-line military sources said.

Intelligence reports of the possible Syrian attack were cited as the reason Defense Minister Moshe Dayan canceled his resignation and extinguished a cabinet crisis that nearly forced Premier Golda Meir to quit.

Some Israelis had suggested Wednesday that the attack reports might have been more a device to enable Mrs. Meir to settle the crisis than a real danger.

But Israeli military sources at this front about 25 miles from the Syrian capital of Damascus said messages had been received outlining the proposed Syrian offensive and the political strategy behind it.

The reports disclosed that President Hafez Assad of Syria wanted to launch a limited offensive to heat up the Golan Heights front and apply pressure on Israeli-Syrian truce talks, the Israelis said.

The talks, arranged by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on his last trip to the Middle East, are to start in Washington in about two weeks with Kissinger as go-between.

Workshop on aging Saturday

The first session of a Workshop Series on the Black Aging and Aged will be held from 9 a.m. to 12 noon Saturday at the Attucks Multi-Purpose Center, corner of N. Gum and E. Main Streets.

The workshops will be conducted by the College of Human Resources through the Training and Aging Program.

Saturday's session will kick off the first series of workshops which will run through May 25. The next series of workshops will start July 6 and run through Sept. 28.

Registration is closed for the first series but interested persons may now register for the second workshop series, Kay Schade, secretary of the Training and Aging Program, said Thursday.

She said enrollment will be limited to 35-40 persons, for each session. Interested persons may enroll in the workshop or obtain more information by calling the Training and Aging Program at 536-7769.

Jean W. Robinson, director of the workshops, will be the featured speaker at Saturday's session. She will introduce the workshops and outline the purpose and objectives of the workshops.

"The purpose of these workshops is to develop an awareness of and a sensitivity to the special problems of Black aged families and individuals, to assist in developing approaches to problems which are common to all of the aged and aging and to function as a resource to those who are involved in providing services to the aged," Ms. Robinson.

Enrollment in the workshops is open to anyone who has a specific interest in the area and all the sessions are free.

The workshops are financed jointly by the Illinois Board of Higher Education and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

Warm weather moves students back to country

By Charlotte Jones

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Budding trees, longer days and temperatures in the 70's apparently have sparked a back-to-the-country exodus for many SIU students who spent winter quarter cooped up in the city.

Mobile home owners located near the outer city limits say they expect their courts to fill up for spring quarter following a slack in trailer renting during the winter.

Chuck Glover at Chuck's Rentals said the spring move to the country is traditional among a lot of SIU students. Glover owns about 140 trailers in two courts outside town and said he expects to be at least 80 per cent full for spring quarter.

Glover said the high price of propane—the predominant heating fuel for mobile homes—caused problems among his trailer renters this winter. Utilities this winter cost trailer renters almost as much as rent and forced many students to move into other housing, he said.

Now that winter is about over and utility bills are decreasing, students are ready to move out of crowded city conditions, Glover said.

Don Beatrice, manager of Carbondale Mobile Homes park located at the edge of town off Route 51 north, said he may be renting at fully capacity spring quarter. The court has about 130 trailers. Beatrice said he had all his trailers rented fall quarter but had about a 25 per cent drop in renters for winter quarter. "Propane gas jumped from 18 to 36 cents a gallon and many students simply couldn't afford to pay utilities," Beatrice said.

He said a lot of students came out in the fall wanting to get away from the crowded conditions in town. Beatrice said he thought the government would force a rollback in the price of gas by next winter but if prices don't come down it could affect his year-round business at the trailer court. People don't especially enjoy moving into town for the winter and back into the country again in the spring just to avoid outlandish fuel prices, he said.

Carol Bennett at Village Rentals said a lot of students who had called there about renting had requested a place located out of town. We have about 60 houses and apartments to rent but none outside of Carbondale, she said. "A lot of students just like being out of town but lower rents are another reason to live in rural areas. Over all, rents are cheaper outside of town, she said.

TV sought in kidnaping of Hearst girl

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP)—Two imprisoned Symbionese Liberation Army members claim they want to save kidnapped heiress Patricia Hearst and have asked for a nationally televised news conference to outline their suggestions. There was no immediate response Thursday to their request.

SLA kidnapers of Miss Hearst continually have linked her fate to that of the two SLA "soldiers"—Joseph Remiro, 27, and Russell Little, 24—who now say they may hold the key to her freedom.

The two are charged with murder and assault in the cyanide-bullet assassination of Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster—a crime for which the SLA claims responsibility. They are being held at San Quentin Prison.

Little and Remiro did not elaborate on their suggestions except to say they "might possibly be acceptable to the SLA, FBI and the Hearst family and which could result, if accepted, in the release of Patricia Hearst."

The girl's father, Randolph A. Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, said Thursday he had "no comment as of yet" on the prisoners' letter, which was delivered Wednesday to Berkeley radio station KPFA. The letter was dated Feb. 27.

Hearst has not heard since Feb. 20 from the SLA kidnapers who claim to have abducted the pretty University of California coed from her Berkeley apartment on Feb. 4. Organizers planned Friday to resume a fourth food giveaway demanded by the SLA as a "gesture of good faith."

Authorities in Alameda and Contra Costa County, where Little and Remiro are charged, had no comment. The FBI also refused comment.

Committee rejects Nixon offer

WASHINGTON(AP)—The House Judiciary Committee today found President Nixon's offer of evidence for its impeachment inquiry unsatisfactory, but decided against issuing a subpoena at this time.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., urged withdrawal of a motion for a subpoena until the committee has had a chance to examine the material Nixon had promised to deliver.

The President, through a letter sent by White House lawyer James St. Clair, has offered to give the committee everything already turned over to the Watergate grand jury.

St. Clair's letter added that Nixon "believes that the materials ... are more than sufficient to afford the Judiciary Committee with the entire Watergate story."

Committee members charged the White House with attempting to restrict the impeachment inquiry to Watergate, and Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., moved for the immediate issuance of a subpoena to obtain other information the committee has requested.

Rodino, noting that Nixon's offer will produce more than 700 documents, said that material should be examined before the committee asserts its subpoena power, and Drinan reluctantly withdrew his motion.

Nearly every committee member, including the Republicans, expressed support for resorting to subpoena power at a later date if any material it needs for its impeachment inquiry is withheld.

Grand jury indicts Ehrlichman again in Watergate case

WASHINGTON (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman, already charged with conspiring in the Watergate cover-up, was indicted again Thursday—this time for allegedly sending White House agents to rifle a psychiatrist's office and lying about it later.

The federal grand jury charged Ehrlichman, along with former White House aide Charles W. Colson and four men tied to the Watergate burglary, with conspiring to violate the rights of Dr. Lewis J. Fielding of Los Angeles.

The felony indictment said the intent was "to search for confidential information concerning Daniel Ellsberg" in the September 1971 break-in.

At the time, Ellsberg was under indictment for unauthorized possession of classified materials—held responsible for leaking the Pentagon Papers, a study of the development of the Vietnam War.

Ehrlichman, who resigned as President Nixon's top domestic adviser last April 30, had denied knowing in advance about the Fielding break-in but said national security could justify it.

The White House special investigations unit, nicknamed the Plumbers, had been put in his charge by President Nixon.

The conspiracy charge, carrying a maximum 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine, named Ehrlichman, Colson, G. Gordon Liddy, Bernard L. Barker, Felipe DeDiego and Eugenio R. Martinez.

Additionally Ehrlichman alone was charged in one count of lying to the FBI and three of lying to the grand jury. Each carries a maximum five-year prison term and a $10,000 fine.

If convicted on all counts in the Watergate cover-up and Ellsberg case indictments, Ehrlichman would be liable for a 55-year prison term. He also is scheduled for trial April 15 on conspiracy, burglary and perjury charges in Los Angeles.

Deputy District Atty. Stephen Trott, the prosecutor of the state case, said he will fly to Washington with Dist. Atty. Joseph Buch Monday for a conference with special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski. "We've done a lot of groundwork," he said, "but now we have to get together and decide how this will be handled."

California statutes are that a person once tried elsewhere for specific activities should not be tried for the same activities again in the state.

Colson, facing his second indictment in six days, restated his innocence and said "there is much the public has not been told about circumstances surrounding this matter. A great deal more may be revealed in the course of this proceeding." Colson formerly was special counsel to Nixon.

Barker and Martinez pleaded guilty to breaking into the Watergate office building quarters of the Democratic National Committee. Martinez was released on parole hours before Thursday's indictment. Barker is free on appeal.

G. Gordon Liddy, the stoic mastermind of the Watergate break-in and a team leader in the Ellsberg foray, was charged also in a separate indictment Thursday with two counts of refusing to testify or produce papers when he was called before a House committee last July.

DeDiego, along with Barker and Martinez from Miami's Cuban community—and like them a veteran of the Bay of Pigs invasion—was indicted for the first time.

Egypt asks Arab countries to stop oil embargo on U.S.

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Egypt has asked Arab oil countries meeting here Sunday to lift their five-month-old embargo against the United States, an Oil Ministry official said Thursday.

Informed sources in Kuwait said that rich Persian Gulf oil sheikdom also is ready to drop the embargo.

The ministers are gathering here—with the embargo at the top of their agenda—at Egypt's invitation, officials said. Their meeting was originally scheduled for Tripoli, Libya.

The Egyptian Oil Ministry official said it was switched to Cairo because of a lack of hotel space in Tripoli. But there was speculation in some quarters that the change grew from Libyan resistance to lifting the embargo. Iraq and the Palestinian guerilla organizations also are known to oppose resumption of U. S.-bound shipments.

President Anwar Sadat proposed lifting the embargo in return for Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's help in concluding an agreement to disengage Egyptian and Israeli troops along the Suez Canal front, and for Kissinger's efforts to arrange a similar disengagement of Syrian and Israeli troops on the Golan Heights.

Resumption of shipments to the United States would help ease the gasoline shortage that has resulted in long lines in front of many American service stations. Authorities say the embargo is costing the United States about 10 per cent of its total daily needs of about 19 million barrels of crude oil.

President Nixon expressed optimism at a White House news conference Wednesday night that U. S. diplomacy in the Middle East inevitably will influence the Arabs to lift their embargo.

But he declined to predict outright that the Arabs will decide Sunday to resume oil shipments to the United States, observing that such a prediction from him might "lead them to do otherwise."

There were reports that Saudi Arabia and several Persian Gulf states in addition to Kuwait endorsed the Egyptian call for an end to the embargo.

The embargo was imposed after the October Middle East war as a way to pressure Washington away from support of Israel.

'Class' offers good giggles, not Academy Award material

By Dave Stearns
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"A Touch of Class" now playing at the Varsity Theater, consists of suave people making clumsy fools of themselves—which is supposed to be funny, I guess.

We have seen Doris Day and Rock Hudson romp through similar situations that were more cleverly written and directed. Also, Doris Day movies featured the suspense of not knowing whether Hudson would be able to pull Doris into the sack without marring her.

A Review

There is no such suspense in "A Touch of Class" as in "The Apartment" and "The Music Lovers." A deal (handshake and all) at the beginning of the movie to have uninvolved sex. Such a relationship is attractive to both parties because Segal is, and Ms. Jackson needs, a tension reliever from her job.

Director Melvin Frank takes too much time setting the scene for a comic situation that simply is not that funny. Thus, the film is cumbersome and tedious rather than sharp and witty.

Man, wife indicted on abduction counts

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—William A.H. Williams and his wife, Betty Ruth, were indicted Thursday by a federal grand jury on charges related to the abduction of Atlanta Constitution editor Reg. Murphy.

Williams, 33, was indicted on charges of extortion and on six related counts. His wife, 26, was indicted on two counts—aiding and abetting extortion and failure to report the crime.

Asst. United States Attorney William Gaffney said the couple would be arraigned Friday before U.S. District Court Judge Newell Edenfield.

The Lilburn, Ga., husband and wife were arrested Feb. 23, hours after Murphy was released unharmed. FBI agents said they found $700,000 in cash in the Williams' home.

The newspaper owners paid a ransom of $700,000 for Murphy's release after 49 hours of being held captive.

The extortion charge could result in a penalty of up to 20 years in prison and $10,000 in fines.

Williams also was indicted on charges of making false statements when he purchased firearms in December 1972 and July 1973. The indictments referred to his failure to state a previous felony conviction for stealing a government automobile from a military reservation.

The grand jury also indicted Williams on two counts of receiving firearms as a felon, one count of using a firearm in the commission of a felony and one count of mailing threatening communications.

Gaffney said the threatening communications charge referred to a cassette tape recording of Murphy's voice that he mailed to the newspaper office as a method of presenting ransom demands.

The grand jury returned the indictments after a day and a half of testimony from witnesses.

Williams could be sentenced up to 10 years on the charge of using a firearm to commit a felony; up to 20 years and a $5,000 fine on conviction of mailing threatening communications; up to five years or $5,000 each on the two counts of making false statements; up to two years or a $10,000 fine for each of two counts on receiving firearms as a felon.

Betty Williams, in addition to being subject to a 20-year term if convicted on charges of aiding and abetting extortion, could receive up to three years or a $500 fine on the count of failing to report the crime of extortion.

Segal is well suited to his role, but, like his co-star, he is too fine an actor for the flimsy "A Touch of Class" script. Together, Segal and Jackson do create a few sparks. In one of the funnier scenes, the couple has a colossal clothes fight which ends when Segal lunges for Ms. Jackson but his victory is hampered by a jammed fly zipper.

Segal and Jackson also inject plenty of pathos near the end of the film when they realize their affair is doomed and they must call it quits out of consideration for each other. But by this time, the film has been so absurd and spineless that it's hard to sympathize.

This "PG-rated" English farce does provide a few good giggles, but all in all, it's difficult to understand it's Academy Award nomination as best picture of 1973.

Peace Corps volunteers sought to assist farmers in Nicaragua

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Volunteers willing to travel to Central America are being sought to do some farming for a year or two. William Doerr, assistant dean for resident instruction in the School of Agriculture, returned from Nicaragua Sunday night and is trying to find at least five volunteers who have agricultural degrees for the Peace Corps to help farmers in that area.

Doerr's companion on the trip was James Rice, of North Carolina State University. Rice also will be looking for five volunteers.

Doerr left for Central America Feb. 20 to acquaint himself with the Peace Corps in Nicaragua. With this information, Doerr said he hopes to interest students graduating soon from the School of Agriculture to work in Nicaragua.

Doerr said he made the trip to be able to answer any questions a potential volunteer might have and to let them know what will be in store for him once he sets foot in Nicaragua.

After juggling up on all the paper work created by his two-week absence, Doerr said he will try to contact students interested in the program.

With the collection of posters, bulletins and brochures he obtained during his trip, some type of presentation will be made for anyone interested, Doerr said.

"I'm able now to talk to anyone interested in the program," he said. By acquainting himself with the program, Doerr said he is able to "remove a lot of the doubts a potential volunteer might have."

The Peace Corps is looking for nine persons with bachelors degrees in agriculture, and two persons with master degrees in agriculture. The Peace Corps hopes to have these recruits to begin training for service in November, 1974.

Only three of the volunteers can be married persons Doerr pointed out. And the spouses of the volunteers must be qualified as Peace Corps volunteers in the health or nutrition areas.

This set-up is not true of all Peace Corps programs, Doerr cautioned. It is special to one program known as FARM (Future Agricultural Research Manpower).

Doerr is powered about the success of his recruiting assignment. He explained that agricultural graduates have not had much employment problems in recent years.

"If he's offered a good job elsewhere, he must have some special motivation to join the Peace Corps," Doerr said.

The Peace Corps volunteer earns enough money each month to live on, plus $75 a month which is put away until the volunteer ends his service.

Compare this with a job that may pay between $600 to $800 a month and it is easy to see Doerr's worries.

Yet, Doerr is quick to point benefits for joining the program. The volunteer has the opportunity to learn another language. "This is valuable if he wants to continue international work as a professional," Doerr said.

"The person has to be really motivated and that's the best kind," he said. A person interested in helping people is better motivated than a person who just wishes to travel, Doerr observed.

He began his trip in San Jose, Nicaragua where 11 volunteers were finishing their training.

Doerr then followed the volunteers through their orienting stage when they meet with volunteers who have been there a year or more.

Half of the volunteer's training period deals with language and the other half with agricultural training. The volunteers are taught specific skills needed in the area.

During the training period, each volunteer stays at the house of a resident who the volunteer calls his "family."

Doerr said that when he finally has a big enough group interested in the program he will schedule a meeting to show slides and explain the program in more detail.

Gas stocks tapped to spread supply

WASHINGTON (AP)—Federal energy chief William E. Simon tapped gasoline stocks Thursday to increase distribution in March and keep service stations waiting lines from getting as long as in February. Simon announced increases in March averaging only about 2.9 million gallons per day — an improvement of about one per cent over February — but the increases were concentrated most heavily in states with poor supplies, and improvements there should be more marked.

The increases were distributed so that no state would receive less than 85 per cent of its March, 1972, gasoline supply, adjusted for growth of motor vehicle registrations since then.

Meanwhile, the American Petroleum Institute API reported that gasoline production decreased about two per cent last week, matching a decrease in refinery inputs.

The API, an oil industry organization, blamed the decreased refinery operations largely on "scheduled shutdowns for repairs," and partially to lack of crude oil. Both production and imports of crude oil slipped downward last week, the API reported, although imports of refined products increased substantially, by about 377,000 barrels a day. In the last week of February, Simon ordered emergency shipments of gasoline from company inventories into 26 states and the District of Columbia to relieve local shortages and long gas station lines.

Although that emergency injection was to total some 7.8 million barrels of gasoline and it seemed to be flowing, the drawdown did not show up in the API statistics, covering the week ended March 1.

Instead, the API figures showed a 3.8-million-barrel increase in the gasoline stocks, to a new total of 226.5 million barrels, about five per cent higher than a year ago.

By ordering special allocations to increase the March distribution, Simon appeared to be dipping into gasoline stocks for another 6.76 million barrels.

Simon told the National Governors' Conference, where he announced the March allocations, that further emergency allocations could be made if new problems arise, but he did not think they would be necessary.

Simon also told the governors he was considering the idea of lifting the voluntary ban on Sunday gasoline sales, to aid the recreation and vacation industry, but his deputy, John C. Savhill, later told newsmen that Simon meant Sunday sales might be resumed after the Arab oil embargo against the United States is lifted.

Bicentennial quarter design proves profitable family affair

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS (AP) — Designer Jack L. Ahr credits his wife and five teenage children with helping him design the colonial drummer boy that will appear on the nation's 1976 Bicentennial quarters.

"It's unbelievable. Any superlative you can think of would apply," said Ahr, after it was announced in Washington that his design was one of three chosen for the coins.

Ahr, 42, operates a design and sales promotion company in this northwestern Chicago suburb.

His design will appear on the reverse side of the 25-cent pieces minted for the United States' 200th anniversary of independence.

Dozens of proposed designs were submitted in a contest that was held as part of the nation's bicentennial observance. Three, including Ahr's were chosen by Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and Director Mary Brooks of the U.S. Mint.

"I don't think too many people knew about the contest," Ahr said Thursday. "My wife read about it somewhere and said, 'Hey, this is something you could do.' I said, 'Sure, me and a million other people.' But we did it, and it worked out beautifully."

Ahr noted that coin designs usually are handled by the Treasury Department itself, and that Mrs. Brooks toured the country seeking entries.

Ahr said he did not know how much time he spent on the project "but I worked on it for so long and we lived with the design for so long that my wife even came up with a name for the drummer-Luther. It's a colonial type name and it sounded good to her."

He said hours of thought went into the project before he committed anything to paper.

First he sent in a black and white drawing last year. That emerged as one of 12 semi-finalist entries and he then had to prepare and send a plastic molding.

Ahr said his whole family took an interest in the project and helped with suggestions.

"At one point, my 14-year-old son looked at the design and said it was too cluttered. So I took out a flag I had in there and replaced it with a small torch surrounded by 13 stars. Now my son wants his initials on the coin," he said.

Along with the honor, the selection of Ahr's design carries a $5,000 cash award.

"We've got a lot of places to put the money," said Ahr, noting that one of his five children will begin college next fall, with the others close behind.

Seth G. Huntington of Minneapolis designed the outline of Independence Hall that will appear on the back of the half dollar.

Dennis R. William of Columbus, Ohio, designed the combination of a Liberty Bell superimposed on the moon that will be on the back of the dollar coin.

Reyes Syndrome hits 140 in three months

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—More than 140 cases of Reyes Syndrome, which strikes down young children and teen-agers, have been reported from 21 states since last Dec. 15, the Center for Disease Control reported Thursday.

Michigan leads the list of states reporting the illness with 27 cases, the CDC said. Wisconsin is next with 14.

A spokesman said the disease is not a reportable disease as far as the Public Health Service is concerned, but the CDC asked state public health departments to make reports because of rising interest in the disease and its increase last winter.

As of last week, the number of cases began to show a decline, the CDC said.

The CDC said the 146 cases listed since Dec. 15 are either suspect or confirmed and that the list probably is incomplete.

Cause of Reyes Syndrome is unknown, but it is characterized by fever and nausea and follows such diseases as chickenpox and Type B influenza, the spokesman said.

Researchers are making special efforts to find out more about the malady which has a nationwide death ratio of about 34 per cent among those who contract it, the CDC said.

Of the 146 cases, the victims were between four months and 18 years, it was noted.

Too much fishing may make sardine thing of the past

NEW YORK (AP)—The sardine sandwich may become a thing of the past, says Audubon magazine, if overfishing persists.

Britain's east coast sardine fishery is dead already and schools of the fish off Maine, Canada and California are dwindling. There are only 17 sardine canneries in Maine now compared to 51 in 1950.

One remedy, says the magazine, would be to close down spawning areas, since it is at spawning time that the fish congregate in largest numbers, but no government seems much interested.

The term sardine is applied to both pilchards and sea herrings.

Memorial lectureship set up in honor of late professor

The Department of Philosophy has recently announced the establishment of the Wayne Leys Memorial Lectureship in memory of the late Wayne A. R. Leys, professor of Philosophy.

Through funds collected from private individuals, the department, in cooperation with the SIU Foundation, has established an endowment for an annual lecture on a topic in ethics and political and legal philosophy.

Of special emphasis will be lectures on the application of ethics to concrete issues of social policy, an area to which Professor Leys made significant contributions during his career.

The first of the Leys Lectures will be given in the spring of 1975. They will be open to the public.

Leys came to SIU in January, 1964, where he served until his death on March 7, 1973, at the age of 67. While at SIU he helped to build a small philosophy department into one with a major graduate program awarding the Ph. D. degree.

Leys was author of co-author of nine books and numerous articles, most of them dealing with ethical problems in policy-making.

He also served on several Federal agencies. In 1962 he lectured in Latin America as an American specialist for the State Department. This practical experience strongly influenced his writings. Leys was also active in philosophic organizations.

The philosophy department welcomes further contributions in support of the Leys Lectureship. Check contributions to the fund should be made out to the SIU Foundation (917 W. Chautauqua, Carbondale) with Leys Memorial Fund indicated on the check. Contributions are tax deductible.

Yugoslavs cast bread

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — An average Yugoslav eats 170 kilos (240 pounds) of bread annually. But, since 10 per cent of all bread is discarded after it dries, it follows that 20 million Yugoslavs throw away 34,000, 10-ton railcar loads of bread annually, according to statistics.

Joint Fee-Allocation Board hears fund requests from Student Government Activities Council (SGAC). JFAB members are to hear from 35 campus groups which have submitted budget requests.

Joint fee board hears $56,264 fund request

The Joint Fee Allocation Board (JFAB) heard fund requests totaling $56,264 from members of Student Government Activities Council (SGAC) Thursday during the first session of 1974-75 fee allocation hearings.

SGAC Chairman Bob Weichert presented the budget and broke it down into these categories: Homecoming, $2090; Parents' Day, $1000; banquets, $1000; films, $6100; office expenses, $2400; staff salaries, $5024; cultural affairs, $8700; Student Center programming, $8450; SGAC general fund, $8424; free school, $2000; lectures, $5000; model United Nations, $2000; student orientation, $7500; and video, $5000.

Weichert said the $5000 for lectures is a new category which will be under the auspices of the SGAC international affairs committee.

"There is no lecture series on campus now," Weichert said, "and if we have had a lot of input from people wanting one. We hope to get speakers of national and international stature."

JFAB members will continue to hear fund requests from spokespersons of the more than 35 campus organizations which submitted budget requests before they make their final decisions.

Hearings will be from 2 to 4 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday. Tuesday will be deliberation day, when the nine-member JFAB meets to decide allocations.

Monument honors gunfighter

TOMBSTONE, Ariz. (AP)—Nearly a century after his death in the mountains east of here, the unmarked grave of gunfighter Johnny Ringo was adorned with a six-foot marker.

Ringo was one of the most feared gunfighters in the 1880 boom days here. His body, with a bullet hole in the right temple, was found propped against an oak tree on July 13, 1882. Historical records indicated a coroner's jury ruled the death suicide, but 10 years later another gunman boasted of killing him.

The monument was built in late 1973 by Arizona highway employees and other area residents who became interested in the gunfighter's life.

March gas supply raised in all states, summer looks bad

By the Associated Press

Illinois was promised Thursday 32 million more gallons of gasoline this month than the total amount allocated to the state in February. But industry and federal officials meanwhile were warning residents that the gasoline pinch will be sharper this summer.

The Federal Energy Office announced that all 50 states will receive at least 85 per cent as much gasoline this month as they had two years ago. The extra 32 million gallons ordered for Illinois will bring the state's share just to the 85 per cent minimum, federal officials said.

The 32 million gallons brings to 389.2 million the number of gallons to be delivered to Illinois service stations this month. The February allocation to Illinois amounted to 357.4 million, including 20 million gallons of emergency gasoline ordered to ease the tight supply toward the end of the month.

An oil company executive warned Thursday, meanwhile, that even with conservation measures the nation may experience a 15 to 20 per cent gasoline shortage this summer.

If conservation measures aren't effective, the shortage could reach 30 per cent, warned Richard H. Leet, vice president of supply and distribution for Amoco Oil Co.

Leet addressed a corporate planning conference of the Planning Executives Institute Thursday in Chicago.

"What is most obvious here is that people will not be able to drive wherever they want to, even if they drive slowly and ride four to a car," he told Americans planning summer vacations.

Leet said even if the Midwest oil embargo is lifted before summer, "the roots of our energy problems are so deep that the resumption of Mideast oil shipments will not go far in solving our problem."

William N. Walker, general counsel of the Federal Energy Office, visited Chicago Wednesday and offered the same bleak outlook for summer vacation plans.

"To the extent that the embargo stays in effect, pleasure driving will have to be severely curtailed," he said.

Walker said, for example, Chicagoans should think of taking their vacations at Wrigley Field home of the Chicago Cubs baseball team instead of in the North Woods.

The Chicago Motor Club reported Thursday that the tight gasoline supply has eased considerably in the Chicago area in the last week, but the price has risen about four cents a gallon.

Its weekly survey indicates that service stations are pumping more gasoline than any time since Christmas. The area up to 75 miles from Chicago in northwestern Indiana and downstate Illinois also has a more abundant the motor club said.

Elsewhere in northern Illinois and Indiana, gasoline availability remained unchanged, the report indicates, with most stations selling gas without limits and remaining open until 8 p.m.

In Chicago and suburbs the average price is 55.6 cents a gallon for regular and 59.5 cents for premium.

FEO figures indicated that most states bordering Illinois are getting March allocations near the bare minimum of 85 per cent of the gasoline purchased in the states in March 1972.

Only Wisconsin, 89.5 per cent, and Iowa, 88.8 per cent, will receive substantially more than the minimum this month, the figures showed. Wisconsin will get 18.3 million gallons more this month than in February, while Iowa will get an additional 14.2 million.

The FEO report showed that Indiana will get 7.6 million more gallons in this month for a total 85.2 per cent of its March 1972 consumption; Missouri will get an additional 25.9 million gallons for an even 85 per cent, and Kentucky will get 11.3 million more gallons, also 85 per cent of the March 1972 figure.

Federal energy chief William E. Simon said seven states—Alaska, Kansas, Louisiana, Minnesota, North Carolina, Texas and Wyoming—will get 100 per cent or more of their March 1972 gasoline supply levels this month.

Richman and Schwartz vie for county circuit judge post

By Randall R. von Liski
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Richard E. Richman and Robert W. Schwartz are in a heated race for the Democratic nomination for circuit judge in Jackson County.

Richman, 47, is running as an incumbent having been appointed by the Illinois Supreme Court in 1971. Schwartz, 58, has been an associate circuit judge and has served on the bench 14 years.

The Democratic winner will face Republican C. Robert Hall in the general election. Hall is unopposed in the Republican primary. Both primaries will be March 19.

Circuit judges serve six-year terms. They are paid $30,000 per year.

Richman holds degrees from the University of Chicago, the University of California and the University of Illinois College of Law.

In 1964 and 1968, Richman was elected state's attorney of Jackson County. He has also served on the SIU faculty, teaching in the departments of government, management and crime and correction. He lives in Carbondale.

Richman sees his competence and his record as a judge as his main qualifications for office. "In any political contest the challenger should show why he would do a better job assuming that the incumbent is fair and honest," he said.

Richman cited the increased number of cases disposed of by the court during his tenure as one of his accomplishments.

Schwartz, holds the A.B. degree from the University of Illinois and has L.L.D. and J.D. degrees from the University of Alabama.

For a short time after World War II, Schwartz taught government at SIU.

In 1959, he was elected Carbondale city magistrate, in 1966 he was appointed magistrate for the First Judicial Circuit, and in 1971 he was appointed associate circuit judge. Associate circuit judges are appointed by the circuit judges in a judicial district.

Schwartz said he has no criticism of Richman's record but feels he has more experience on the bench. "I've been on the bench 14 years and there hasn't been the slightest implication of any impropriety in my court," he said.

In a recent poll conducted by the Illinois State Bar Association, Schwartz received an over-all rating of "recommended" based on votes from Republican and unaffiliated attorneys. Richman and Hall received "recommended" ratings from Republican, unaffiliated and Democratic judges.

Plumbers got start with Pentagon study

WASHINGTON (AP) — The strange tale of the White House Plumbers really began on Sunday morning, June 13, 1971, when The New York Times began publication of a classified Pentagon study of U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia.

One chapter ended on Wednesday when a federal grand jury charged six men, including former presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman, with engineering a burglary.

The leak of the Pentagon Papers quickly was traced to a former Pentagon aide, Daniel Ellsberg. On June 28, 1971, Ellsberg was indicted by a federal grand jury in Los Angeles on charges of misuses of government property and unauthorized possession of classified material.

President Nixon was deeply troubled by the leak of the Pentagon

Papers. He became even more disturbed, by all accounts, when the U.S. fallback position at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks leaked out.

A sense of desperate urgency developed in the White House. Ehrlichman told Egil Krogh Jr., a 33-year-old lawyer on his staff, that he was to form a small investigative unit within the White House to trace and halt unauthorized leaks.

"Mr. Ehrlichman instructed me that the activities of the unit were to be impressed with the highest classification and kept secret even within the White House staff," Krogh said in a statement after he had pleaded guilty to charges stemming from the Ellsberg burglary.

The president was convinced, said Krogh, that the leaks "were compromising the national security of the United States." Ellsberg became the focus of the Plumbers investigation for two reasons: he had held the highest security classifications in government and there had been a report that a copy of the Pentagon Papers study had been delivered to the Soviet Embassy in Washington.

Student drops rape charges

Rape charges filed against SIU student Obed Gardiner were dismissed Wednesday in Jackson County Circuit Court.

The 19-year-old SIU coed who had charged Gardiner raped her dropped her complaint, Howard Hood, state's attorney said.

Gardiner, 23, of Nassau, Bahamas, a star triple-jumper for the SIU track team, was arrested Feb. 19.

Area legislators rated on conservation voting

The Student Environmental Center (SEC) has received an evaluation of the conservation voting habits of members of the Illinois legislature.

The evaluation was compiled by the Illinois League of Conservation Voters. The members of the Illinois General Assembly were rated on an "excellent, good, fair, poor, bad" scale, according to their voting records concerning environmental bills.

SEC president Jeff Kolp said most Southern Illinois representatives were "close to, but not quite on the Dirty Dozen list." This list is made up of legislators who received a rating of "bad" for continually voting against issues which environmentalists felt were important.

Southern Illinois legislators who received "poor" ratings were Rep. Clyde Choate, D-Anna, Rep. C.L. McCormick, R-Vienna, and Rep. Norbert "Doc" Springer, R-Chester. Rep. Richard Hart, D-Benton, and Rep. Hames Holloway, D-Sparta, both received "fair" ratings.

Sen. Kenneth Buzbee was one of the few legislators from Southern Illinois who rated "good" on the scale. The scale was based on the voting on 18 different Environmental bills which came before the General Assembly last year.

The SEC has posted a chart indicating the environmental voting records of all members of the legislature. Persons interested in the voting on environmental issues by their home representatives are invited to inspect the chart on the SEC office door in the Student Government Offices, third floor of the Student Center.

Women's status will be examined

A new course focusing on women's status as students in higher education will be offered spring quarter.

Students may still register for Higher Education 402, section 3, or call Ginny Britton who will be teaching the course, at 453-5738.

The class will meet from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays in Wham 212. Students will begin by looking at women's roles in higher education in the past and present as well as looking at the factors which led to these conditions.

Students will also examine direct and indirect discrimination against women in higher education and barriers for women in higher education.

Energy Secretary Eric Varley decreed factories would resume a normal work week at midnight Friday after 68 days on part time.

That will signal the end of the grave industrial crisis that contributed to the downfall of Edward Heath's Conservative government.

Coal shipments started moving Thursday from pits to power stations and state-owned steel plants on which much of industry depends for its raw materials. The shipments were the first since the 280,000 miners launched a nationwide strike for the more money a month ago.

Varley said industry should get back to a full production "pretty quickly." However, the secretary appealed to Britons to continue to cut electricity consumption in their homes to speed the return to normality in industry.

Varley said the three-day week had cost about $4.6 billion in lost production and unemployment payments to temporarily laid-off workers.

The government's swift settlement came as coal stocks neared the danger level.

Full steel production, cut by some 40 per cent during the miners' campaign, was not expected to resume for some weeks. That will mean many factories will not be able to be fully back in business for some time.

Heath's decision to put nonessential industry onto a three-day week Dec. 31 sparked mass unemployment and cut most production by 30 per cent.

The settlement came two days after Wilson's Laborites replaced the ousted Heath administration.

SIU track NCAA effort rests on 440, mile relay

By John Morrissey
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Coach Lew Hartzog has pinned his hopes for a respectable place in this weekend's NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships on the showings of his mile relay and 440 entries.

Last year SIU tied for sixth in the two-day NCAA finals, placing Terry Erickson first in the 440 and the mile relay team third.

SIU has qualified eight individuals and two relays for this year's championships, which start Friday morning on the Cobo Arena track in Detroit. But Hartzog has decided not to bring along the distance medley relay, because he can't afford it. Triple-jumper Ken Lorraway will not make the trip either because of a sore foot.

The Salukis qualified four individuals in the open 440, Erickson, Wayne Carmody, Eddie Sutton and Mike Monroe. NCAA rules, however, permit only two team entries per event, so Hartzog will go with Erickson and Monroe. Carmody and Sutton will still make the trip on the mile relay team.

Erickson was stricken with the flu prior to the Illini-USTFF meet two weekends ago, and Hartzog said Erickson didn't recover enough to start practicing until Feb. 28.

But he maintains Erickson is "well and running," and though he can't tell yet if idleness and after-effects have taken any physical toll, Hartzog said Erickson "appears to be ready to go."

Erickson will have intense competition in Detroit this weekend in the 440. Last weekend's Big Ten conference meet put two quarter-milers under 48 seconds. Kim Rowe of Michigan captured the 440 title in 47.6 and William Wallace of Indiana followed close in 47.7. Erickson has run 46.9 this season, clocked in a leadoff role in the SIU mile relay.

Lawrence Jones of Southwest Missouri State is back this year after being red-shirted last season. Jones is the 1972 indoor 440 champ, and has run in the 44's outdoors, Hartzog said.

He also gave Jerry Krainik of Northern Illinois a good shot, especially after watching Krainik sprint to a 48.2 on Notre Dame's slow, circular track in the Central Collegiate Conference Championships. And Hartzog had some confidence in the strength of Monroe.

"I feel Mike has a chance to do pretty well," Hartzog predicted. Monroe qualified in the 440 the first time he ran it this season, two weekends ago in the Illini-USTFF meet.

Hartzog said Ed Wardzala has a chance in the 600, in spite of the tough competition expected in Detroit. "I wouldn't take him if I didn't think he'd do a little something," he explained. "I didn't think Terry would place up there last year."

As for jumpers Bill Hancock and Phil Robins, Hartzog said they would have to come up with "a fantastic performance" to show up in the final placings.

"Hancock's got the experience," he said of the junior's chances in the high jump, but added he hasn't jumped for a good average this year. "I think he'd have to jump 7 feet."

Robins will be up against five triple jumpers over 52 feet, led by Illinois Charlton Ehizuelen.

SIU's mile relay team has a solid shot at a national title, but it will have high-speed competition by no less than nine other squads, including defending champ Seton Hall and American record-holder Michigan State, which set a 3:11.7 mark in last weekend's Big Ten Indoor championships.

Hartzog will lead off with Erickson, followed by Sutton, Carmody and Lonnie Brown.

Associated Press lists Manhattan as the favorite to win the NCAA team championship, a title they are defending this year.

But Hartzog said Illinois has a good chance to come away with team honors. He said a winning team must place high in four or five events, and Illinois has the individuals to do it.

He pointed to Ehizuelen in the long jump and triple jump, Dave Kaemerer in the 880, Mike Durkin in the two-mile and the distance medley of Kaemerer, Ben App, Durkin and Rich Brooks.

New Orleans awarded NBA franchise for $6 million

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Basketball Association awarded Thursday a franchise to New Orleans for the 1974-75 season.

Commissioner Walter Kennedy said a nine-man group headed by Fred Rosenfeld of Beverly Hills, Calif., paid $6,150,000 for the franchise.

Kennedy said the NBA board of governors will meet again within two weeks to consider further expansion plans for next season.

The commissioner said two groups are bidding for a franchise for San Diego but declined to name any other cities where the league might place a team. Asked about reports that Toronto was in line for a franchise, Kennedy said, "We are considering Toronto for the future but I don't think we would have expansion to Toronto this year."

Kennedy declined to comment on reports that the rival American Basketball Association was planning a consolidation of its league as a preparation to merge with the NBA.

Kennedy said any merger discussions with the ABA would have to go through legal channels to avoid violating a New York federal court injunction barring merger plans.

He said the New Orleans franchise, which is unnamed, will be stocked by each NBA club, freezing seven players on each of the 17 current teams and allowing the new club to pick one man from each.

Kennedy said the New Orleans team will play its home games in the Superdome, which is scheduled for completion in 1975. Prior to that, it will play at the Municipal Auditorium of the Loyola University fieldhouse.

Rosenfeld said the group has made no selection of a coach or general manager but has had discussions with several persons.

"We expect to move very quickly now," he said.

Kennedy said expansion for the 1974-75 season would not create scheduling problems since the league already has been working up formats for 17, 18, 19 or 20 teams.

He also announced that next season would begin Oct. 17, which is a later start than this season's Oct. 9 opening. He said there was no discussion of this season's playoff format and that a seven-game series would be carried out on a basis of two games at home, two away and then back-and-forth single games.

The Saluki grapplers will close out their dual meet season against the University of Oklahoma Sooners, Saturday night at Norman, Oklahoma.

SIU will carry a two meet winning streak and a 6-11-1 dual record into the Oklahoma meet. The Sooners are sporting an 18-6 record this season. Last year Oklahoma finished with a 12-5-1 dual record, including a 31-3 trouncing of SIU.

The Sooners finished second to Oklahoma State in the Big Eight Tournament held last weekend. Rod Kilgore captured the 1974 Big Eight Championship at 158 pounds, as did Jeff Callard, at 167 pounds.

Oklahoma will send a total of nine wrestlers to the NCAA Championships, March 15-16 at Iowa State. The Sooners qualified at every weight class, except 177 pounds.

"The Sooners balance has been really strong in the latter half of their season," said Saluki wrestling coach, Linn Long. "But we have three kids who are dealing with a hot hand right now."

The three kids Long was referring to are Mark Wiesen, Don Stumpf and Andy Burge. They will be SIU's representatives at the NCAA Championships.

"I think Wiesen can be a good wrestler, it is just a matter of his deciding that he can be a good wrestler," Long said. Wiesen went into the Eastern Regional unseeded and came out as the champion at 177 pounds.

Don Stumpf, who qualified for the finals with a second place finish at the Eastern Regional, will face Oklahoma's Jeff Callard Saturday night. This season, Callard is carrying a 25-3 won-loss record. Stumpf is 22-5.

Last year in the NCAA semi-finals, Callard defeated Stumpf, 3-0, and went on to place third. Stumpf finished fifth. This match is billed as the one to watch Saturday.

Andy Burge is the third Saluki going to the nationals at Iowa State. But Burge is no stranger to the NCAA Championships.
